Advertising acts as the nervous system in the sphere of business

Stories exist since time immemorial and story-telling is central to human existence since the very genesis of the world. Listening to them, or watching them out is all as basic to human beings as eating. It can be very clearly stated that stories are inseparable from human lives. Likewise, stories are also entangled & intertwined with the concept of advertising. Besides getting accordance, the art of story-telling, advertising & business also go hand-in-hand.

- Now, in the era of easy come, easy go brands & players who can dare to overlook or ignore the pivotal role of advertising? In real sense, advertisements are spoken of as the nervous system of the world of business. Whether we like it or dislike it but none of us can deny the fact that decisions taken are majorly influenced by what is in sight while on the other hand, what goes out of sight goes out of mind!

Advertisements play an imperative role in the arena of business, for both manufacturers & consumers. Be it the selling of an idea, a product, or a service, advertising is the key to unlock success. Irrespective of the size and kind of the business, advertising is the lure that draws attention, creating influence, generating desire, and resulting inaction of purchase eventually. Now, why do you think that it happened so? Ponder & wonder!

- Most probably because people woke up to the power of the mighty concept of advertising long back! The sphere of business might have understood that no advertisement means almost no sale. Although the concept of advertising might appear to be easy to many, it is not. Coming up with the right kind of advertisement for a brand besides striking the cord with the right kind of target audience, is not everyone's cup of tea. Advertisement strategies require a lot of planning, a deeper understanding of marketing, ideas about people's perception, and innate creativity; all these cannot occur in a vacuum and hence the role of the advertising agencies become existent.
- Just like an engineer cannot perform a doctor's job, an interior designer cannot uphold the game of fashion designing; only the best advertising agencies can come up with the creative ad ideas, inspirational & brilliant ad campaigns that are too effective to be turned down without paying attention to.
